University of Louisville Campus

The University of Louisville is a state supported research university located in Kentucky's largest metropolitan area. It was a municipally supported public institution for many decades prior to joining the university system in 1970. The University has three campuses. The 287-acre Belknap Campus is three miles from downtown Louisville and houses seven of the university's 12 colleges and schools. The Health Sciences Center is situated in downtown Louisville's medical complex and houses the university's health related programs and the University of Louisville Hospital. The 243-acre Shelby Campus is located in eastern Jefferson County.

department offers a graduate certificate in cybersecurity. The CIS department offers an undergraduate certificate in information security. These programs provide educational, research, and service activities in cybersecurity, information assurance, forensics, and legal aspects of computing. Also, they aim to promote secure and ethical use of information technology throughout the university and the community at large.

Our institution provides cybersecurity programs in two schools: the departments of Computer Engineering and Computer Science (CECS) and Computer Information Systems (CIS). The CECS
